A MESSAGE FROM FR. STEVE

Lumen Veritatis* February 16

Our next Lumen Veritatis lecture will be held this Saturday (February 16) evening at 7:30 in Mercy Hall (127 Rumsey). The evening begins with fellowship at 7:00 p.m., followed by a talk, questions & answers, and more fellowship. This month's Lumen Veritatis lecture is entitled, "Thomas Aquinas: An Anthropology of Human Sexuality." Our speaker is Fr. Thomas Petri, O.P., who is Vice President and Academic Dean of the Pontifical Faculty of the Immaculate Conception in Washington, D.C. I met Fr. Petri at Mundelein Seminary, where he was, at that time, studying for the Diocese of Owensboro, Kentucky. He later joined the Dominicans, and was ordained a priest in 2009. I look forward to seeing Fr. Petri, and hearing his lecture. Join us if you're free.

Men's Conference

The annual Diocese of Lansing Men's Conference will be held next Saturday, February 23 at Our Lady of Fatima Catholic Church (913 Napoleon Road, Michigan Center, MI 49254). The conference runs from 10 a.m. – 5 p.m. Tickets can be purchased through a link on our website. What to Expect: Motivating messages from Deacon Harold Burke-Sivers and Fr. Tim MacDonald, Adoration and confessions, a mouth-watering pig roast BBQ lunch from Stick-A-Pig-In-It, music by Brian Flynn & Band, concluding with a Vigil Mass with Bishop Boyea at 4 p.m.

Plans for Women's Conference (Spring of 2020)

Liz O'Neill recently returned from a women's conference at the JP II Healing Center in Florida, and we have been asked to be one of their first sites that will hold the women's conference. We are planning to schedule it for spring a year from now. Please pray for the JP II Healing Center, and for their growing ministry. I personally remain indebted to them for the great gift of healing, and the ways that our ministry has grown and changed, thanks to their insights and ministry.

Unwanted: How Sexual Brokenness Reveals Our Way to Healing

On my retreat in January, I was introduced to a book by Jay Stringer, a minister and therapist who works and lives in Seattle. The book is insightful and provides a great window into the dynamics of broken sexuality. It was a quote from his book that I shared when I said that the Lord invites us to look at our stories (of whatever kind of struggle) with "curiosity and kindness." The basic premise of the book is that life in Christ is not "sin management," but having our "minds transformed." In the Foreword to the book, we read the following:

We are instructed not to be conformed to the ways of the world but to be transformed by the renewing of our minds. Renewing our minds is not about turning off our minds. It is about turning to pursue the deepest affections God has given us. We get a clear sense of the author's perspective by the following quotes from his Introduction:

It is my conviction that the God of the universe is neither surprised by nor ashamed of the sexual behavior we participate in. Instead, he understands it to be the very stage through which the work of redemption will be played out in our lives. Present sin is the doorway to the wider work of the gospel to bring healing to the wounds of the past and comfort, even power, to the difficulties of the present. Therefore, the sooner we assume a posture of curiosity for our sexual brokenness, the more we will prepare our hearts for the redemptive work ahead. God approaches us for our joy, not due to his disappointment in us. His heart is to exchange beauty for ashes, joy for mourning, and praise for despair (see Isaiah 61:3). There is no depth of shame that the love of God cannot reach. There is no story he cannot redeem. The paradox of the gospel is that our failures do not condemn us; they connect us.

Stringer, Jay. Unwanted: How Sexual Brokenness Reveals Our Way to Healing (p. xx). He concludes his Introduction with this story:

There is a story in Genesis 16 about an Egyptian teenager by the name of Hagar. She is brought in as a concubine because Abram and Sarai have been struggling with infertility issues for more than ten years. Hagar, whose name means "stranger" or "sojourner," successfully conceives a child for Abram and Sarai. But Sarai, the barren wife, turns on Hagar and unleashes mistreatment. Commentators of this story have remarked that this mistreatment has a particularly cruel bent to it, some even suggesting it to be as severe as sexual assault. In the next scene, Hagar is on the run, heading into the desert, where by all accounts she will die. It is here in the wilderness, the geography of trauma and death, that a miraculous thing happens. The presence of God finds this pregnant teenager and asks her the two best questions any one of us can be asked when we are in distress: "Where have you come from?" and "Where are you going?" (verse 8). What I want to underscore is that the voice of the Lord is never filled with accusation or frustration. God's presence invites us to greater reflection as to how our unwanted lives became the way they are today.

Far more than trying to diagnose you as a sinner or addict, I will ask you questions. You will read about individual accounts and research findings from men and women whose stories have remarkable similarities to your own. Your task is not to draw hard-and-fast conclusions but to be intrigued by the data. Our sexual brokenness, if we pay attention, is revealing our way to healing. As we begin this journey, ask yourself, Where is it that I come from? And where is it that I am going? May your heart be curious as you study the great tragedy and beauty that your story reveals. (p. xxv).

For perhaps obvious reasons, I can't recommend this book highly enough. In 21st Century America, no one is free from the effects of sexual brokenness, because the culture itself is sexually broken. My hope and prayer is that all of us will experience the sort of healing that Jay Stringer describes, which, as you might expect, has significant overlap with the insights from Dr. Bob Schuchts and Sr. Miriam James. The Lord is at work in human hearts, and my prayer is that all those who are troubled by patterns of behavior, especially behavior that causes them shame, would pursue healing prayer. I think this book can be a great grace for those who count themselves (and shame themselves) for being "sexually broken." There is hope. Always. Do not be afraid!

With prayers that we would all experience God's healing love,

Fr. Steve
