Solemnity of the Most Holy Body and Blood of Christ (Corpus Christi)

Today, we celebrate this great Solemnity, which announces to the world our devotion to Jesus, truly present in the Blessed Sacrament, Body, Blood, Soul, and Divinity. Our liturgies owe a tremendous amount to St. Thomas Aquinas, a Dominican priest and Doctor of the Church. He was brilliant and prayerful and he handed on to us the fruits of his contemplation, in true Dominican fashion. May our hearts and minds be like unto St. Thomas Aquinas, that after an offer from the Lord of anything, we would wisely choose, “nothing but Jesus.” For, having Him, we have ALL.

The Privilege and Power of Suffering through, with, and in Christ

Last weekend, I preached largely based on St. Paul’s letter to the Romans, and invited us all to contemplate the mystery of a suffering God, through, with, and in Jesus Christ, who is truly God and truly man. Suffering entered the godhead through the incarnation. In our second reading last week, St. Paul wrote the following to the Church at Rome: The Spirit himself bears witness with our spirit that we are children of God, and if children, then heirs, heirs of God and joint heirs with Christ, if only we suffer with him so that we may also be glorified with him. The underlined phrase was one that I elaborated on in light of the following verses that St. Paul includes in Romans 8: I consider that the sufferings of this present time are not worth comparing with the glory that is to be revealed to us. For the creation waits with eager longing for the revealing of the sons of God; for the creation was subjected to futility, not of its own will but by the will of him who subjected it in hope; because the creation itself will be set free from its bondage to decay and obtain the glorious liberty of the children of God (Romans 8:18-21, emphasis added). When we suffer, it seems overwhelming at times, even futile to continue. But we really need to trust (and help others believe) that our joining of our suffering with that of Jesus is actually salvific for us and for others. When we suffer, we do well not to waste it, but to join it to the sufferings of Jesus.

Not Why, But How

When we suffer, we often find ourselves wrestling with how a good and loving God could allow (or do!) this or that to us or to those we love. We cry out “why is this happening to me (or to them or to us)”?! Better to ask, “how do you want to use this or that for the salvation of souls, beginning with my own?” Dan Schneider, in his book, The Liber Christo Method, wrote the following, which underscores the importance and power of “offering up” our suffering: Sacred Scripture affirms that Jesus Christ is the sole mediator before the Father (see 1 Tm 2:5). That is, Jesus (who is both fully God and fully man) obtained the objective graces of man’s salvation as a unique mediator who offered Himself as Priest and Victim for us. This does not mean, however, that we can stand by idly. In fact, Jesus invites our participation in the subjective distribution of Calvary’s graces. We most approximate Christ as co-redeemer when we suffer for others as He suffered for us. Saint Paul told the Philippians, therefore, to “stand firm in one spirit ... struggling together for the faith of the gospel” while not being “intimidated” (Phil 1:27–28).

The secret to standing firm in the struggle and not being intimidated lies in union with the suffering Lord: “For to you has been granted, for the sake of Christ, not only to believe in him, but to suffer for him” (Phil 1:29). He allies this principle to himself elsewhere, when he states, “I rejoice in my sufferings for your sake, and in my flesh I am making up what is lacking in the afflictions of Christ on behalf of his body, which is the church” (Col 1:24). Our sufferings, therefore, help distribute the graces that Christ merited on Calvary. In so doing, we uncover a powerful weapon in defeating Satan; that is, we become co-redeemers with Christ in the salvation of souls. And in another place, he writes the following: You must move from why to how. The reaction in the emotions and memory is strengthened by looking at one’s reactions to the pain of the event. This implies an act of the will that seeks no longer to ask, Why is this happening to me? Rather, we must ask: How can I use this for the salvation of souls? That is a powerful and potentially transformative question best asked (and answered) in the context of contemplative prayer and/or in conversation with a spiritual director. The Lord is inviting you (and me) into this suffering to transform us, to change us, to bring us to the place where we can begin to experience the promised glorious liberty of the children of God.

Summer Hours Begin June 3

Beginning tomorrow, June 3rd, there will be no one staffing the reception desk in the office on Mondays and Fridays. The summer office hours (when the reception desk will be staffed) will be Tuesday – Thursday from 9:00 am-12:00 pm & 12:30 pm-4:30pm. Summer hours will be in effect through Labor Day. Please note you can drop things off for the office at other times using the drop box on the side door as you enter the parking lot. If you come at other times, staff members will often be in the office, including on Mondays and Fridays. You can ring the doorbell to get assistance.

In Gratitude for Our Teachers

We concluded our school year this past Friday. As pastor, I am grateful for Cindy Wolfe’s faithful service as our fifth grade teacher. She will be moving to Steubenville, Ohio, where she will be teaching high school English next year. We are grateful for her service witness to our students and to us. We will miss Cindy, and invite you to pray for her. Please pray for all of our teachers, and give God thanks for them.

Aaronic Blessing

At the end of the school year Mass, I blessed those gathered using what is called the “Aaronic Blessing,” which can be found in Numbers 6. I offer it to you here for your edification, and potentially for your own use, especially by parents with their children. You could, as some families do, bless your children using this formula every evening before they go to bed. The LORD bless you and keep you: The LORD make his face to shine upon you, and be gracious to you: The LORD lift up his countenance upon you, and give you peace. (Numbers 6:24-26) Amen!

With prayers of blessing for you and yours,

Father Steve
