Here we are in July! I usually think July is the one month that families take off more than others. Maybe I am wrong or I guess I should at least investigate that thought more. I am sure there is study out there someplace with those results!

As you think about doing things with the family, let me put a thought in your head now early in July. July 26 is the feast of St. Ann and St. Joachim, the parents of our Blessed Mother and the grandparents of Jesus. Here in the Archdiocese of Detroit we celebrate July 26 in a special way as St. Anne (taking the French spelling from our heritage) has been declared Patroness of the Archdiocese of Detroit. So July 26 is a great day to celebrate family!

The Feast of St. Ann and Joachim, is Thursday, July 26. Thursday is the day we have been praying the Rosary outdoors at the Rosary Garden on Morningside, in front of the statue of Our Lady, Queen of the Universe. I invite you to come as a family at 7:30 pm and pray as a family, just as we pray as a parish family. The

 Thanks again to all those who have contributed to the Catholic Services Appeal for 2018. Through your generosity so many doors are opened for Christ to come into the lives of thousands of people. If you have not yet made your pledge or gift for 2018, please consider such a gift. No gift is too small when it is given with sincerity of heart.

 Is there anyone who is willing and able to make two above ground flower beds for a special learning environment? The parish will supply the materials but we could use the help in the construction. If you are interested, please call me or Brian Ebner, our business manager. Thanks!

May the Lord bless you and thank God in advance this week!

The beatification of Fr. Solanus Casey was a major event and a blessing for both Detroit and the archdiocese. It has brought his life and works to the attention of countless individuals.

This has come at a time when parishes and individual Catholics in this area are delving into “Unleash the Gospel”, the charter for renewal of the Church in southeastern Michigan.

The focus of the charter is evangelization. And it’s easy to see that a profile of the life of Blessed Fr. Solanus matches the profile of an evangelizer. Here are just a few examples.

Prayer was an important part of his life from the very beginning. His parents were immigrants from Ireland. Here in the United States, they were free to practice their faith, unlike what was happening in their home country.

Fr. Solanus had a great trust in the will of God. One of the things he would say is “Blessed be God in all His designs.”

He was a very good listener. People would come to the monastery to tell him all kinds of problems and seek his assistance.

He shared God’s mercy with them by being patient, kind, and compassionate. He told them not to worry and to trust in God.

Prayer was a part of these discussions and he would pray for them personally afterwards.

“Prayer was an important part of his life from the very beginning.”

He was thankful for everything, including his own situation in life. He did not ask for the ability to hear confessions or preach doctrinal homilies, both withheld due to difficulties with his studies.

To those who came seeking some type of help, one of the things he would say is: “Thank God ahead of time”.

Blessed Fr. Solanus saw Jesus in the people at the monastery door.

Jesus visits us each and every day, more than once, constantly! He is at our door!

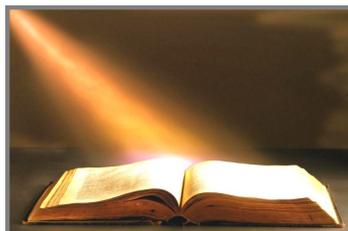

One in the Spirit,

Jean Wersching

Be the Domestic Church

"Daddy, is God real?" A 6-year-old asked his father. How would YOU respond to that question? How do YOU share your faith with your children? "You need to bring spirituality into your everyday life, not just check it off your list when you drop your kid off at Sunday school," says Mimi Doe, coauthor of 10 Principles for Spiritual Parenting. Centuries of experience have shown that a strong spiritual foundation can be central to a happy, purposeful, and ethical life.

So how do you teach your children about our Catholic faith? This starts a series of articles on how you can help your family to Encounter, Grow, and Witness to Christ in our world.

Set an Example

Want to make your beliefs ring true for your child? The old axiom applies: Practice what you preach. If you plan to have your kids attend religion classes, go to church regularly yourself. If teaching goodwill toward others is important, don't just say, "God wants you to be kind to other people"—hand a sandwich to a homeless person, or welcome a new family to the neighborhood. If you say you believe in prayer, let your children see you praying. Start by saying a prayer before meals, bless your child before they go to bed by making the Sign of the Cross on their forehead along with a simple prayer like the Guardian Angel prayer. If you want them to forgive others, be sure to demonstrate that by the way you forgive them their mistakes. God will be sure to reward all of your efforts done with a heart and mind open to Him.

Stewardship Thoughts

In St. Paul's Second Letter to the Corinthian community, this Apostle to the Gentiles reminds them that they are abundantly blessed in all things by way of Christ. He encourages them to give from their surplus in relief of others, especially to the struggling Church in Jerusalem. The Book of Wisdom professes that our generous God made us in His image. This same teaching is found in the Book of Genesis. The evangelist St. Mark illustrates, in his Gospel, Jesus' compassionate miracle of restoring Jairus' daughter to life. In gratitude, do we, as faithful stewards share our many blessings by generously giving to the parish offertory and the Catholic Services Appeal? Do we show Christlike compassion to our fellow parishioners and brothers and sisters in need? To reduce debt so you can focus on giving, read 7 Steps to Becoming Financially Free by Phil Lenahan.
